Group of Ontario teachers, in co-operation with the Audio-Visual Section of the Department of Education, have examined critically non-projected visual aids from many sources. Booklets, charts, flat pictures, maps, posters, and samples were evaluated as teaching aids and correlated with the Program of Studies. Those aids that were rated as particularly useful are listed.

Key

Cat.	Catalogue on Request
General	General Interest
T.R.	Teacher Reference

Suggestions for Ordering these Aids

1. Write your request on official school stationery.
2. State clearly your position on the teaching staff.
3. Identify the desired aids definitely by their complete titles (where available) and by the nature of the materials.
4. Request only single copies when first writing for free material.
5. Discourage pupil requests. If material is available in class sets, teachers should place the order.

Do not order from the

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that proper record-keeping is essential for the integrity of the financial system and for the ability to detect and prevent fraud.

2. The second part of the document outlines the specific requirements for record-keeping, including the need to maintain separate accounts for different types of transactions and to ensure that all records are properly indexed and filed.

3. The third part of the document discusses the importance of regular audits and reviews of the records. It states that audits are necessary to ensure that the records are accurate and complete, and to identify any areas where improvements can be made.

4. The fourth part of the document provides a detailed description of the record-keeping system that has been developed. It includes information about the types of records that are maintained, the methods used to collect and process the data, and the procedures for reviewing and auditing the records.

5. The fifth part of the document discusses the importance of training and education for the personnel responsible for maintaining the records. It states that all personnel must be properly trained in the record-keeping system and must be kept up-to-date on any changes or improvements.

6. The sixth part of the document discusses the importance of security and access controls for the records. It states that all records must be protected from unauthorized access and that appropriate security measures must be in place to ensure the confidentiality and integrity of the data.

7. The seventh part of the document discusses the importance of backup and recovery procedures for the records. It states that all records must be backed up regularly and that appropriate recovery procedures must be in place to ensure that the records can be restored in the event of a disaster.

8. The eighth part of the document discusses the importance of documentation and reporting for the record-keeping system. It states that all procedures and processes must be documented and that regular reports must be generated to provide information about the system's performance and any areas where improvements can be made.

9. The ninth part of the document discusses the importance of ongoing monitoring and evaluation of the record-keeping system. It states that the system must be regularly monitored and evaluated to ensure that it is meeting its objectives and that any necessary changes or improvements can be made.

10. The tenth part of the document discusses the importance of communication and coordination between the different departments and units involved in the record-keeping system. It states that all personnel must be kept informed of the system's status and any changes or improvements, and that coordination must be maintained to ensure that the system is operating smoothly.
